1.6. Mission Statement of the Institute as presented in the Foundation Charter

The mission of the Institute of Political Science of the SAS is basic research into political relations and processes within their internal and international political contexts. The Institute focuses on conducting studies in the area of international relations and political systems, the history of political thought, the research methods of political sciences and recent political history.

1.8. Summary of R&D activity pursued by the institute during the assessment period in both national and international contexts, (recommended 5 pages, max. 10 pages)

The primary objective of the Institute of Political Science is statutory and - in terms of national interest – specified and individualized exploration of Slovak political phenomena. The methodology and objects of the research are defined by the following approaches: Slovakia in Central Europe and Slovakia in Europe, a practice which has so far been rather unique in our social science disciplines. This has determined the forms of the output and the printed presentations. The most appropriate are large monographs, both individual and collective. Since, in addition to the scientific community, a large portion of the outputs is also targeted at the decision-making authorities of the Slovak Republic (as expressly stipulated by the IP SAS Foundation Charter) and other stakeholders in Slovakia, it seems both necessary and appropriate to present these also in the Slovak language.

In the period between 2012 and 2015, research of the Institute of Political Science focused on the following research areas:

- political system in Slovakia before and after 1989;
- Foreign policy and international affairs of Slovakia versus EU and NATO;
- The history of political thought and research into the leading personalities of Slovak politics.

Political system in Slovakia before and after 1989:

This line of research was pursued at IPS SAS in the period under consideration mainly within the VEGA project of the Ministry of Education, Science, Research and Sports SR - SAS "Politicians and political history – coming to terms with the past", Project no. 2/0014/12. The outputs of the project mainly included papers published in journals and books. The research team and project partners focused on dealing with the past communist regime and post-1989 Slovakia, the impact of historical events on the formation of the Slovak foreign policy after 1993, the intellectuals' stance on the Communist Party of Czechoslovakia, the period of the 1970s and 1980s, the status of minorities in the 20th century, Slovak-Hungarian relations and how they were affected by historical events as well as methods of teaching history in universities. The theme of dealing with the past was addressed within the international project The Visegrad Fund Recovering Forgotten History. The image of East-Central Europe in English-Language Academic Textbooks, Project no. 21510178. In collaboration with Historische Kommission OEAW (Historical Commission at the Austrian Academy of Sciences) we paid special attention to the status of Czech and Slovak national minorities in Vienna and Lower Austria in the 1930s. These activities were undertaken within the project entitled "Jan Auerhahn Representative of the Czechoslovak Institute for Minority and his relation to the Czechoslovak minority in Vienna and Lower Austria in the 1930s." The Institute's research team focused on the normalization period and the post-November developments within the Centre of Excellence SAS under the title "Slovak History in the History of Europe". The principal investigator was the Institute of History SAS. The history of the Communist Party of Slovakia and the Communist Party of Czechoslovakia were investigated as part of the project entitled "The Communist Party of Czechoslovakia and Bolshevism", whose principal investigator was the Institute for Contemporary History of the Academy of Sciences of the Czech Republic. In collaboration with the Institute for Sociology SAS and the Faculty of Arts, Comenius University in Bratislava, we look into the events of 1968 and the Church policy of the state between the reform period and the present within the project of the Agency for Science and Research "Democracy and Citizens in Slovakia: A Half-Century of Change", project no. APVV-0627-12.

Political development after 1989 was dealt with within the VEGA project of the Ministry of Education, Science, Research and Sports - SAS "Formation of Slovak politics in the years 1989-1994, Project no. 2/0187/14, particularly the processes of democratization, minority issues and political parties, the beginnings of Slovak foreign policy and the first phase of re-orientation of Slovakia towards the European Union. It followed on from the long-term internal project of the IPS SAS "Views on Slovak politics after 1989" which also examines contemporary political thought. As a comprehensive output of our interdisciplinary approach, there are two book volumes to be released under the same title in the latter half of 2016. The outputs of the research on the political system were presented by Juraj Marušiak in the publication "Political Systems of Visegrad Group countries" issued jointly by the University of St. Cyril and Methodius in Trnava and the Catholic University of Lublin in 2012. Results of the comparative study of the constitutions of the Slovak Republic and the Czech Republic and their impact on respective national identities were presented by Juraj Marušiak in the "Czech-Slovak Historical Yearbook" in 2013. Other VEGA projects pertaining to the post-1989 development were „Marx and changes in society after 1989“, Project no. 2/0141/11 and the „Strategy for the transformation of society in the context of civilizational analysis“, Project no. 2/0072/15. The projects were carried out in close cooperation with the Centre for Global Studies of the Institute of Philosophy of the Czech Academy of Sciences, the Faculty of International Relations of the University of Economics in Bratislava, the Faculty of Arts and the Faculty of Education of Comenius University in Bratislava. The researchers focused on Marx's theory and its applicability to the processes of socio-political transformation, the Marxist analysis of the post-November development in Slovakia, participatory democracy and the possibilities of sustainability of the welfare state. The issue of post-1989 manipulation of public opinion by the media was addressed by the Institute of Political Science as part of the joint VEGA grant project of the Slovak Academy of Sciences and the Ministry of Education, Science, Research and Sports SR "From persuasion to manipulation in political and mass media communication, Project no. 2/0200/11. Research into the current theme of the crisis of democracy is underway as part of the aforementioned APVV project „Democracy and Citizens in Slovakia: A Half-Century of Change“. Slovak foreign policy and international relations of Slovakia versus EU and NATO have been addressed in several national and international projects. The issue of Central Europe was analysed by the International Visegrad Fund project entitled "Visegrad cooperation and the future of Central Europe", project no. 31110009. Research institutes and institutions participating in the project included: the Institute of Political Studies of the Polish Academy of Sciences, Faculty of Public Administration Corvinus University of Budapest, Faculty of International Relations, University of Economics Prague. The findings were published in the following publications: MARUŠIAK, Juraj et al.: Is Visegrad Still a Central European "Trade Mark"? and MARUŠIAK, Juraj et al: Internal Cohesion of the Visegrad Group. In collaboration with I. Kuras Institute of Political and Ethnic Studies of the National Academy of Science of Ukraine, we tackled a joint project "Europeanization" of Slovakia and Ukraine - Consequences of the EU-enlargement in 2004 in Comparative Perspective". Slovakia's bilateral relations with neighbouring countries, minority issues, political parties and foreign policy, national and state interests of the Slovak Republic, coordination of the foreign policy of the V4 countries at European level, Eastern Partnership, energy security and other foreign policy-related themes were also addressed within the VEGA grant project of the Slovak Academy of Sciences and the Ministry of Education, Science, Research and Sports, namely: "Foreign policy and the prospects for integration of the Visegrad group in the EU regional strategy", Project no. 2/0188/11 and "National interests of the Slovak Republic in international relations in the post-integration period", Project no. 2/0036/15. In these projects, we closely cooperate with colleagues from the Faculty of Arts of Comenius University in Bratislava, the Faculty of Law of Comenius University in Bratislava and the Faculty of Arts of Constantine the Philosopher University in Nitra.

The history of political thought and research on prominent figures in Slovak politics constitute yet another part of research activities of the Institute of Political Science SAS. We have focused on the issue of historical materialism (Marxism and the ensuing critical theories). The intention was to reaffirm the continued significance and relevance of historical materialism and to bring it back to scientific debate. The research has involved the issues of interpretation and misinterpretation of Marx's intellectual legacy, critical discourse on capitalism and its alternatives (such as economic democracy), reflections on social changes, political ways of enforcing the anti-capitalist alternative. In this context, the issue of social justice has been viewed in the conditions of globalization and against the background of the existing social model. Research has also focused on theories of social justice (egalitarian liberalism, libertarianism, communitarianism). The said issues were addressed within the VEGA project "Marx and changes in society after 1989", Project no. 2/0141/11 and the VEGA project "Strategy for the transformation of society in the context of civilizational analysis", Project no. 2/0072/15. Institutions involved in the research were the Centre for Global Studies, the Institute of Philosophy of the Czech Academy of Sciences, the Faculty of International Relations, University of Economics in Bratislava, the Faculty of Arts, Comenius University in Bratislava and the Faculty of Education of Comenius University in Bratislava.

Research on leading personalities in Slovak politics conducted at the Institute of Political Science has enjoyed a strong support from the decision-making bodies; a long-term project of national importance has been carried out under the auspices of the Prime Minister of the Slovak Republic and with the financial backing of the Ministry of Education, Science, Research and Sports. Each year of the annual event "Milan Hodža Days – leading personalities in Slovak politics" is dedicated to one prominent Czechoslovak statesman and Slovak politician. In the years 2012 – 2015, the personalities covered were: Anton Štefánek, Pavol Blaho, Milan Hodža and Ivan Markovič. (Concurrently with the conference, we organize events to introduce these personalities to pupils, students and wider audiences.) Scientific activities in the period under review were summarised in the following book publications: Dr. Ivan Dérer - politician, lawyer and political journalist; Dr.

Vavro Šrobár - politician, journalist and national educationalist; Milan Hodža as an actor in international relations. Manuscripts on other prominent figures of Slovak politics - Anton Štefánek, Pavel Blaho and Ivan Markovič are in preparation. Within the VEGA projects of SAS and the Ministry of Education, Science, Research and Sports, we further examined the activity of Ivan Déer („Dr. Ivan Déer - Slovak Social Democratic Politician, Lawyer and Political Journalist“, Project no. 2/0199/10), Anton Štefánek („Dr. Anton Štefánek - Politician, Journalist and Researcher, Project no. 2/0156/13) and Samuel Zoch („Samuel Zoch. Journals - Correspondence - Speeches - Articles – Sermons“, Project no. 1/0532/12). In addition to these personalities, within the project entitled „Political History and Politicians - Coming to terms with the past“, we focused on the work of Slavic missionaries Cyril and Methodius as well as the activity of Alexander Dubček, Jozef Jablonický, and Gustav Husák.

In addition to the aforementioned scientific institutions from Slovakia and abroad, there have been a number of others participating in the projects and tasks undertaken by the Institute of Political Science: Museum of the Slovak National Uprising in Banská Bystrica, Faculty of Political Science and International Relations and Faculty of Arts of Matej Bel University in Banská Bystrica, Faculty of Arts of Pavol Jozef Šafárik University in Košice, Pan European University in Bratislava, Technical University of Liberec.

The IPS SAS researchers have also participated in other projects pursued at partner institutions abroad:

Sigmund-Naumann-Institut für Freiheit- Demokratiestudien und an der Technischen Universität Dresden with Vladimír Goněc its founding team member (since 2008).

"Disintegration and Integration in East Central Europe (DIECE)" is a long-term research project of an international working group (F, D, GB, I, E, DK, NL, AT, PL, RO, HU, UA, CR, Moldova) existing under the same title since 2011, the project, being part of Erasmus+, is currently specified until 2018. The DIECE Group operates under the "European Union Liaison Committee of Historians" (official body of the European Commission for European Integration since 1982). The institutional base of DIECE is Université de Strasbourg, Institut des Sciences Politiques; Babes-Bolyai University, Cluj, Faculty of European Studies; Babes-Bolyai University, Campus Berlin. (At the institute, Vladimír Goněc has continued with the activities performed as part of EU's Jean Monnet Project of 1998.)

Research Project (launched in 2014) "Good and Bad Neighbourhoods" is currently specified up to the end of 2018. Institutional support: Institute of International Relations and History, Casimir the Great University, Bydgoszcz. It has been in progress in a European network of universities from the Rhine Universities (Freiburg, Cologne /R, Bonn) to Moscow and Sofia. V. Goněc is a member of the Project's Scientific Committee as well as of the work team.

"China - Central Europe Forum", a project underway since 2010, continues on an ongoing basis with the principal Investigator the Chinese Academy of Social Sciences. Vladimír Goněc and Juraj Marušiak have been involved in the project since 2014.

IPS SAS has long been cooperating with Japanese universities specializing in Central Europe, namely, the University of Sapporo (Tadayoshi Hayashi) and Kyoto University (Hiroshi Fukuda).

The Institute of Political Science SAS is a member of IPSA.

Two staffers of the Institute of Political Science are founding members of the Slovak-Czech Commission of Historians (1994). As of 2012, the seat of the editorial board of the Czech-Slovak Historical Yearbook, published by the VEDA, SAS Publishing House, has been located at the Institute of Political Science.

The intensity of cooperation with any scientific institution depends not only on the research objectives or participation in scientific events, but also on an institution's staffing. This is also reflected in the interest on the part of foreign researchers and doctoral students in study visits within the National Scholarship Programme. The IPS SAS has hosted scholars from Belarus, Bulgaria, Hungary, Poland and Ukraine. Within short-term study scholarship programs, the institute has hosted internship researchers from the Academy of Sciences of the Czech Republic while researchers from IPS SAS have visited the Academy of Sciences of the Czech Republic, Montenegro Academy of Sciences and the Wroclaw University in Poland.

Over the period under consideration, the staff of the Institute gained awards at national and international level.

Researchers of the IPS SAS are regularly approached by electronic and print media. Their academic statements are considered impartial and objective, contributing to a better knowledge of Slovak politics as well as of international relations. Their presentations have both an educational and a popularization dimension. Such is, for instance, the institute's cooperation with the Ministry of Culture and the Ministry of Education, Science, Research and Sports on the organisation of events featuring major political anniversaries and leading personalities of Slovak politics.

2.8.4. Description of how the results and suggestions of the previous assessment were taken into account

In 2012, the SAS Accreditation Commission recommended that the Institute of Political Science should "seek accreditation for doctoral studies in compliance with the Higher Education Act", which was indeed achieved. Secondly, the Institute was advised to "focus its work more tightly on political science". This recommendation is being fulfilled. Next, the Commission proposed "focusing on the publication of scientific studies with renowned publishers and in foreign periodicals in world languages, which may potentially yield more citations," which is also being fulfilled. We were also recommended that we should "intensify international cooperation in all fields of scientific activity," in which we are also succeeding.

3. Research strategy and future development of the institute for the next five years (2016-2020) (Recommended 3 pages, max. 5 pages)

3.1. Present state of the art in both the national and the international contexts

3.2. Research strategy of the institute in the national and the international contexts, objectives and methods

The Institute of Political Science SAS occupies a somewhat unique position in Slovak domestic setting. This stems from the fact that, in the period under consideration, the central research domain "The history of political thought and the leading personalities in Slovak politics" received the backing of the Prime Minister and the Ministry of Education, Science, Research and Sports SR. In this respect, the IPS SAS, as the research coordinator, has managed to assemble a network of colleagues-professionals from related disciplines (political science, philosophy, history, sociology), who operate not only at the Academy of Sciences but also at universities and higher education institutions. IPS SAS now applies this method of building research teams to a new research domain - the study of political systems. As a result, such interdisciplinary approach to the problem under investigation arouses increased interest of both the professional and the general public; this, for instance, holds for a number of book titles when VEDA, Publishing House of SAS, had to publish a new edition (reprint).

The institute's outputs have received a number of national and international awards.

In the national context, it is our intention to deepen current cooperation with domestic scientific institutions using interdisciplinary research methods. At the same time, we aim to support future career development of researchers and improve the overall quality of doctoral programmes.

In the international context, based on the recommendations from the previous accreditation, we deem it necessary to extend cooperation with foreign scientific centres, which used to be mainly secured on an individual basis. To this aim, it is the Institute's ambition to enhance its participation in common scientific projects. At the same time, it is our intention to incorporate the existing research results into a wider regional and European framework even more pronouncedly.

Overall, however, given the limited number of researchers, we cannot objectively expect a significant increase in new themes. The results achieved will be presented at national and international scientific events, in the educational process and, in particular, will be published in monographs and academic journals.

From a theoretical perspective, political science as a field existing at the intersection of several disciplines uses methods of diverse social sciences. Due to the necessity to continue with the research on political processes, political institutions, philosophy of politics, political psychology, sociology of politics, political doctrines, all in the context of historical development, it is clear that research methods will be adequate to the object and focus of the research.

Methodological approach to the variety of themes (political system, political thinking and prominent figures in Slovak politics, international relations and foreign policy of the Slovak Republic) will be based on the stated objectives of the research. In our understanding, this means primarily monitoring past and present processes based on the post-November shaping of society, which, for all the tentativeness and flimsiness of attempts to define their boundaries, have still been determined by a relatively clear timeframe. It should also be borne in mind that, in the research on the post- 1989 evolution of the political system and the parts played by the political parties in this development, the role of facts is crucial. What is important, however, is not only the description of events, but also their integration in the development process and the overall context.

Theoretical and methodological principles of research into international relations will be based on the ideas about the factors that affect external environment such as political ideas, processes and institutions in Slovakia. Comparative studies of political parties, formation and operation of pan-European parties and overall Europeanisation is a good starting point for exploring and further development of political science research in Slovakia. In this regard, there seems to be a need for further research into the formation of the political system of EU, Slovakia's adaptation to EU policy and the country's participation in its creation. The research will also focus on the greatest security risks such as international terrorism, growing migration and proliferation of weapons of mass destruction.
